James Robertson

Passes Away

NEWS NOTES

Death claimed another old-timer of Raymond on Monday, December 9th, in the person of James Smith Robertson. Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, May 3rd 1851, he was the son of Geo. Robertson and Jane Smith. He joined the L.D.S. Church in 1878 and the following year he emigrated to Utah.

A miner by trade, deceased was working in the mine at Scofield, Utah, at the time of the great explosion, when 204 miners were killed. "Jimmy" was off shift at the time of the explosion, but he helped remove the bodies of the men from the mine and also helped to prepare them for burial and then assisted in the last rite for these men.

In 1903 he moved to the area with his wife, and her mother, Mrs. Anderson, and he has resided here ever since.

Until a few months ago, he was a familiar figure on our streets with his little dog and lived by himself, preferring this to living with any of his relatives. The last year or two his health was not very good, and Jas. S. Anderson, visited him nearly every day to see if there was anything he could do for him. Seven or eight months ago his health became so bad that he went to live with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. S. Anderson, and was residing with them when he passed away.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the 2nd Ward Chapel with Bishop L. L. Palmer in charge and Jos. McLean conducting the singing. A large crowd was present and a profusion of flowers decorated the rostrum and the stage.

"Farewell Ah Earthly Honors" was the opening song and Bishop Jps. H. Walker offered the opening prayer, and the second number was a duet by McManas J. H. Walker and L. D. King.

Elder A. J. Walton, who was very well acquainted with deceased spoke first and paid tribute to the long and useful life of deceased and his dependability. Jos. McLean sang a vocal solo "One Sweetly Soberm Thought."

Elder John F. Anderson of Cardston brother-in-law of deceased spoke of the pleasure he had enjoyed in knowing deceased, and of their association together over a great many years. He spoke of the passing

E.N. Peterson of Stirling was here Monday and Tuesday of this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Mose Fromm and Mr. and Mrs. Moroni Herget were Calgary visitors Monday and Tuesday, Mose going on business for the Jewelry Store.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Coyle of Calgary and Miss Nellie Coyle of Vancouver, B.C., parents and sister of Mrs. S. Booth Card, were visitors at the home of their son-in-law and daughter last week-end.

The Sunday Schools and Primaries of the two Raymond wards entertained the kiddies in their annual parties in each ward last Friday evening. Santa came in loaded with good things as much as the conditions would warrant, and after a nice program and the distribution of treats the kiddies went home to dream about it all.

of Mrs. Robertson many years ago and said that now after all these years they would have the opportunity of meeting again, in fulfillment of and in obedience to God's word to continue their association together.

Former Bishop J. W. Evans related incidents in deceased's life and spoke of the resurrection of the dead which was real, and which would bring the mortal body back from the grave to be joined again with the spirit, the reunited soul to go on to eternal perfection in accordance to the law of Heaven.

Bishop L. L. Palmer spoke briefly on Death and its purpose. He paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. S. Anderson for their constant care of deceased, and said that for many years, while Jimmy still lived by himself James S. would visit him almost daily in every kind of weather to see that he needed for nothing and that he was alright. He thanked all who had assisted in any way during the illness and passing of this respected pioneer of our district. The closing hymn was "I Need Thee Every Hour" and the benediction was pronounced by Rulon Dahl.

A fair sized cortege followed the remains to the cemetery where interment was made together over a great many years. He spoke of the passing

Two Historic Meetings Held

(Editorial from the New York Times, Dec. 5, 1943)

In the corridor of the Middle East, the land link between the great battlefronts of Europe and Asia, two historic conferences last week shaped the strategy of the United Nations in the winning of the war and their policy in the peace that will follow victory. These conferences brought together for the first time, from the ends of the earth, the heads of state of the three great present enemies of Japan. They witnessed the first personal meeting of Marshal Stalin with Mr. Roosevelt. With the aid of the top flight military and air commanders of the four great Allied Powers decisions were taken which will profoundly effect the course of the war and the shape of history for years to come.

Both meetings took place in one of the great climatic moments of the war. That at Teheran had the advantage of the immense initiative which the Allies have acquired in their battle with Germany—an initiative now evident on the Eastern front, in Italy and in the skies over Germany itself. From the first reports of the meeting there can be no doubt that military questions, constantly in need of fresh appraisal because of the very pace at which the land and air attack is proceeding, played a major part in the discussion and decisions. But a logical consequence of decisions on the question of mobilizing the full power of the Allies against the German war machine is a sharper and closer agreement among the Allies on the future of Germany when her war potential has been destroyed. There can be no doubt that this question was considered at Tehera, and we may hope that it was considered in relation to the whole problem of Europe. It is in this large perspective that the treatment of Germany after the war can best be viewed. Germany is the secondary consideration. The future of Europe as a whole is the first consideration. Here the vital interest of Russia, Britain and the United States is precisely the same as that of the smaller nations.

Reduced to its simplest terms the question is how to solve the German problem in away to safeguard the life and security of the other peoples of the Continent of Europe. Essentially the same question, in relation to the future of the even more numerous peoples of the Continent of Asia, was considered and made the subject of historic decision in the twin conference held, a few days before Teheran, at Cairo. Here the policy determined upon envisages a Japan reduced to the status it occupied before Commodore Perry knocked at its doors in 1853, and a new and resurgent China restored to its long-lost position of leadership in the Far East on a basis of equality with the Great Powers of the world.

The news of the Cairo Declaration came while American opinion was still under the shock of the losses suffered by the Marines in the Tarawa landing. These losses were not great in proportion to the total forces involved in the Gilbert operations, nor in proportion to the importance of the total strategy involved. Still, they did raise the question of the ultimate cost of carrying out the Cairo program. Would any thing short of that ambitious program suffice?

The more one reflects upon this problem the clearer it becomes that there can be no half way mark in dealing with Japan. She cannot be half-defeated and left to recover for another try at dominion over Asia. We can not half-support China in her struggle for liberty. Whatever may be the present cost of the total defeat of Japan it will certainly be infinitely less in the long run than the cost of not finishing the job now.

China has been our ally since December, 1941. Prior to that time she had undergone four years of war against Japan—or if we take the rape of Manchuria as the beginning ten years of more or less open war. She has had possibilities of compromise, and these may still be open. Without our help she would be obliged in the end to make some sort of bargaining peace, the certain effect of which would be to place at least a great part of her resources at the disposal of Japan. Were this to happen our war in the Pacific would either be lost entirely or prolonged through hideous years.

Not only in the interest of China but in our own interest and that of a future and permanent peace we are obliged to support her now. We can support her with materials of war, and must do so to a far greater extent than has yet been found practicable. We must also support her morally, and this is what the Cairo Declaration does. To right the wrongs, that she has suffered at Japan's hands we cannot stop with the year 1937 or the year 1931. We have to go back to the beginning, and this necessitates the retrocession of Formosa, a historic outpost of China, and the liberation of Korea, from which Japan can always threaten the Chinese mainland.

We have to say that the Japanese dreams of empire must be abandoned, once for all, because in execution they have been abusive of human rights. We do not say that the Japanese must revert to their ancient hermitage. We do not say that they are to be cut off from the benefits of world trade. We do say that their military and naval might shall not again be used to procure for them a special position and enable them to enslave other peoples.

Such a question cannot be half-settled. It must be settled completely. And when it is settled there will be settled with it the right of any Power to treat China as a colonial dependency. A new and great nation is rising and is to be recognized; such is the significance of the words from Cairo.

Sugar Campaign Is Finished

Beet slicing finished Thursday just about noon and the washing up process got under way in the beet end as soon as the last of the beets were thru. The juices are being worked out now and sometime tonight or during Christmas day the last of the sugar will be in the bins and finish written to the 1943 campaign. Shortened by the spoilage of so many beets due to the hot, dry fall, the factor here and at Picture Butte have enjoyed fairly good runs, in the month and makes a nice although the bad juice from spoiled beets that were worked through has slowed up operations somewhat. Had the beets remained good in the storage piles it would have been another 12 days before the factories would have finished work.

Beet growers received a nice pre-Christmas gift when the final bonus on 1942 beets was mailed out totalling a price of more than $9.50 a ton on last year's beets. The final initial payment on current beet deliveries was mailed out earlier down payment for the 1,284 growers on this year's beet crop.

Myron Holmes Is Dead

Around the Pack the news is spread, That Lion Myron Holmes is dead.

We heard his Wilde and Herby roar, The night the Lions met before.

He died. It sounded like a growl. (The word that rhymes with this is howl.)

Joe said it was not very strong, They all agreed: "There's something wrong."

With Loren tails — not Evans a twist, In their stout eyes there came a mist.

Yes, o'er the Pack there came a Paul; I'm not o'er stating this at all.

A certain Kingly heart was M. T. (Sarcastic verse, don't be so tempty.)

Said Lion Jack: "I'm young but Kenney, I won't feel bad especially when he

With Jensen agreed about his Bill. Oh! this seemed very bad until,

"Vas nefer Vanderbilt on Jack." Said Lion Bob: "Just Funsatt dat."

And then the boundary ball called Dahl, (I cannot call a rhyme at all.)

Although they say it rhymes with pall. In other climes they call it d - ah - l.)

I will write it down as such, Pronunciation matters much!

"This criticizing cat is dead, We must forget the things he said."

My Rulon, this is Golden rules, Although he was the Dean of fools.

I hold his soul as white as Snow! In spite of this Oh Lions, we know,

To old St. Pete he will go beggy, Saint Peter shaves as close as Heggie!

'Tis said to the Lions he leaves some money. Says a newsy Tom, "Now this is funny!"

(Five for his dues — the Carnival — five.) He wouldn't do this if he were alive."

BLESSED ARE THE

PEACEMAKERS

Again the world celebrates Christmas with the nations of the world at each other's throats in a death struggle for their very existence. Again we will gather round the festive boards, with a thought for the boy or girl whose chair is empty and some of who's will always be empty. Across our great and glorious Dominion there will be many heavy hearts amongst those who have sacrificed life itself in the loss of father, husband or son as the price of freedom.

Two thousand years ago, the Master said "Blessed are the peace makers, for they shall inherit the earth." Where are the peace makers today? Has the malestrom gone so far that the only road to peace is to beat our plowshares into swords and our pruning hooks into spears? Has brotherly love and the true spirit of Christmas reached such a low ebb that even in

WE MUST HOLD THE LINE!

On the home front the battle against inflation is now the most critical of all.

The winning of this battle will contribute much to winning the war.

It will contribute more than all else towards the solution of post-war problems.

The purpose of Price Control is to prevent inflation. Its purpose is to protect and maintain a basic standard of living.

A higher money income will not be of any advantage if, because prices are going up, our money buys less and less.

To win the battle against unemployment in the post-war period, we must first of all win the battle against inflation.

Salaries and wages are a large element, often the largest element, in the cost of everything we buy.

If the Price Ceiling breaks down, in the long run all stand to lose.

We must hold the line against inflation to assure victory in war.

We must hold the line to provide a solid foundation on which, after the war, to build a greater and a better Canada.

the Churches the spirit of re-venge overrules the spirit of justice and equity? As Christmas approaches one cannot escape being engulfed in these questions and queries. We would not say a word or utter a thought that would detract one whit from the war effort. We are out to win and we will win, and yet withal, the world is paying a tremendous price to even slightly impress its millions with the idea of justice equity and fair play.

We are thankful indeed that in Canada, we can still enjoy Christmas. Even in the midst of sorrow because of the ones who are in the service, we can enjoy our greatest of all holidays, and we hope in the true spirit thereof. We can still maintain the kiddies faith in Santa Claus, and thanks to a gracious Heavenly Father we can still exchange gifts and greet one another in the open and friendly spirit of the best of all days of the year. We should be grateful that our very thoughts are not dominated and dictated by the iron heel of militarism. One cannot even imagine what terror the peoples of the Nazi ruled nations are subjected to. A whisper of a ship of paper, a radio, are all the imagined evidence these de praved and insane warlords need to order one to the firing squad. One can hardly imagine beings calling themselves men, robbing, plundering and raping, and watching women and child ren die of starvation while they glut themselves on the best of everything. How much we have to be thankful for this Christmas season. How many and manifold the blessings that we enjoy and think very little of. How little we pay for the safety security and peace which we enjoy.

And so from us to you at this Christmas season our heartiest greetings and good wishes. We have enjoyed another year of your friendship and confidence and we appreciate it, and as Tiny Tim said in Dickens' "Christmas Carol," "God Bless us everyone."
